The perfect balance of stability and comfort

Our Areus mattress offers a popular combination of stability and comfort. The surface of the Areus features highly elastic natural latex foam, which provides your hips and shoulders with excellent contouring and pressure reduction for greater comfort. The independent coils in the base support your weight while mapping to your curves. Together, these two layers create a stable yet flexible sensation. And the Areus cushions the body with natural, breathable materials for a drier and more rejuvenating sleep. The independent base coils help eliminate bounce and motion transfer—so you enjoy fewer sleep disturbances. The innovative design of the Areus creates a healthy, comfortable mattress with a solid, supportive feel.

Exceptional performance and value

The Areus features 1,100 interactive bi-level carbon steel base coils. Alternating these nested tall and short coils gives the taller coils an impressive range of flex upon contact for improved contour, pressure reduction, and stability. Natural latex foam cushioning and a breathable organic stretch cotton cover lined with wool keep you drier and stabilize your temperature for deeper sleep. Like all our mattresses, the Areus is made of certified ecologically healthy, durable components. Available in four firmnesses with a dual firmness option for couples, the Areus combines the durability and comfort features you want with the support you need.
